FROM THE DESK of FR. JACK RUZICKA, ASSOCIATE PASTOR

To the Parish Family of St. Joseph and St. John the Beloved:

In this installment of Ruzicka Recommends, I recommend the novel, “The Edge of Sadness,” by Edwin O’Connor (particularly the edition published by Loyola Classics). This is one of my top five favorite novels of all time. I read this for the first time in the seminary and again, recently, as a priest. While I appreciated it the first time around as a seminarian, I value it all the more as a priest.

The novel details the life of Fr. Hugh Kennedy, a recovering alcoholic, who returns to his priestly ministry in Boston. He is now the pastor of Old St. Paul’s, a lackluster parish that was once grand – an assignment that is, at best, undesirable. He ekes his way through a humdrum and ordinary life as the shepherd of a parish with nothing to do. He is middle aged and is starting to reflect on his life.

The most powerful theme in this novel is dealing with the drama and reality of old age. The main characters in this story are not young and spry; rather, they’re seasoned, nostalgic, and contemplative. The enthusiasms of their youth have given way to the thoughtful musings of life’s meaning and the impact they’ve made on the lives of others. This is a reality that I, as a young man, can only reverence from afar – but will later come to understand.

This novel reminds me of a poignant line from the lovely film, “The Straight Story,” directed by David Lynch (which I also recommend!). In this movie, Alvin Straight (an older man nearing the end of his life) travels many miles to reconcile with his estranged brother. Along the way, he meets various people, creates memories, and shares wisdom and insights from his own lived experience. One evening, while sitting around a campfire with a group of boisterous youngsters, a young man teasingly asks, “So, Alvin, what’s the worst part about getting old?” To which Alvin replies, “The worst part about getting old is rememberin’ when you was young.” In “The Edge of Sadness,” Fr. Kennedy reflects on the meaning and worth of his priesthood now that his younger years are behind him. His reputation now carries the burden of his fall into alcoholism and subsequent leave of absence for recovery. He sees his local community changing, and not always for the better. He wonders if his priesthood is still valid and useful as he sees younger men rise up and do what he once did. He now has to navigate living with a naïve, over-zealous (and slightly annoying) associate. He wonders if his years of experience can be valued and appreciated in a church enamored with the young and vivacious clergy. Here, I will quote at length one of the most profound passages in the novel. It’s not a spoiler! In this excerpt, Fr. Kennedy reflects on the death of his father:

And so my father died. ... Every day and every night I had prayed that he might be allowed either the miracle of recovery or the blessing of a happy death. These prayers were not answered. My father did not recover, and he died witless and in pain. ... Here is the old, baffling problem that has always been with us and will be until the end of time: the problem of reconciling pain and suffering with an omnipotent and merciful God. But here it seems to me we deal with something reason cannot reach, and with that part of man that reason does not touch, for when someone stands fixed and helpless before another’s suffering ... the cool light of reason may not be of much help. A syllogism does not support a mother who has seen her baby burned. And here, I think, faith comes in. ... The point is that if one accepts God, one accepts him totally, accepts what he does and what he permits. One accepts it, but one does not necessarily understand it. Surely it’s a question of vision, for as we are, we can see, but only to the corner; we cannot begin to see the whole design.

While the questions asked in this novel are heavy and deep, the finale is beautiful and hopeful. Edwin O'Connor is an incredibly empathetic and insightful author. Every question and every dilemma is treated with reverence and respect. I firmly believe you will emerge from the pages of this novel with deeper empathy and a renewed love for life. O'Connor shows us, with piercing clarity, that it is often when we are at the edge of sadness that we discover – or perhaps rediscover – the immense joy of knowing God and being known by Him.

So...grab yourself a cup of coffee, a comfortable chair, and a copy of "The Edge of Sadness"! You will not regret this read. Until next time, happy reading! God love you and God bless you!

Respectfully yours,

The COMMUNITY OF TRANSCENDENT MEN presents:

MEN'S CROSS TRAINING

Create more joy in your family by becoming the leader God is calling you to be.

All men of the parish are invited to attend Men's Cross Training practices. You may ask yourself, "Why should I attend these practices?" Here is what other men have said:

- Come and see how striving to be a better man, husband and father takes sacrifice, but brings you joy and happiness you may not have experienced. God wants that for you.
- Come and be with other men who are trying to be better men, husbands and fathers. You'll be with other men who struggle with the same things you struggle with and you'll know you aren't alone. You have other men to lean on when you need help and you'll be there for them when they need help.
- Come and hear a man's personal story of a time in his life when he discovered God was calling him to more. Hear what happened in his life, what changes he made and how his life is different since he made those changes.

Spend one hour with other men learning how to become a better man, husband and father. After the talk, there will be discussion on how you can benefit from what you heard and an opportunity to make a commitment to do something that will help you as you strive to live like a man of God.

There are three sets of monthly practices remaining this semester – most on Thursdays, and 9/12 on Tuesday: Thursday 9/7, Tuesday 9/12, Thursday 9/21, Thursdays 10/5, 10/12, 10/19, and Thursdays 11/2, 11/9, 11/16. Practice is conducted at the Corpus Christi Center at St. Joseph Parish. Doors open at 6:20 pm, the Rosary is prayed at 6:30 and the program begins at 7:00 sharp. Each session is one hour long, ending promptly at 8:00. There is no cost to attend. To learn more go to: <https://catholicctm.org/mens-cross-training>.

Grandparenting with Grace Grandparent Conversations

Grandparents, great-grandparents, aunts, uncles, friends who also serve as grandparents, what do you most want to pass on to your grandchildren?

This and other questions will form the basis of a six-week program gathering grandparents in our community for conversation. All are invited to this program “Grandparenting with Grace.”

The author Kathy Coffey writes: “These sessions will cover the topics of passing on the faith, gratitude, being channels of grace and practical strategies. They are based on the belief that none of us is as smart as all of us, so they will encourage discussion. We have much we can learn whether our experiences are similar or different. While the focus of these sessions is on younger children, the material can be applied to grandchildren of all ages.”

Sessions will be led by Sr. Rosemary Buttice on Wednesday mornings from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. at the Corpus Christi Center. The sessions will begin on Wednesday, September 27 and continue on October 4, 11, 18, 25 and November 8, 2023. Please bring pictures of your grandchildren, great grandchildren or those who are like grandchildren to you. These pictures will be a delightful way to begin our discussions.

If you are interested in attending or have any questions, please contact Sr. Rosemary at:
